QuoVadis signs deal with Kyberpass

(Business from 2001-07-11 Edition)

BERMUDA-BASED QuoVadis Limited and Kyberpass announced this week the Kyberpass Validation TrustPlatform has been selected to provide real-time validation capabilities for QuoVadis' digital certificate customers.

The TrustPlatform validates digital certificates and digital signatures for securing electronic business applications.

"While reputable offshore companies pursue the efficiencies of electronic business, they increasingly use digital certificates for superior security and to fulfill 'know your client' obligations," QuoVadis CEO Tony Nagel said. "Our combined solution allows corporations to check the validity of digital certificates, in much the same way a retailer verifies credit cards. We selected Kyberpass for their responsiveness and proven ability to help real world businesses rapidly implement complex digital certificate technology.

"The TrustPlatform can also validate the digital signature and other digital credentials. These features help our corporate customers — and their clients — manage the risks of doing business online."

QuoVadis' clients include some of the largest names in Bermuda's insurance market, and respected companies from across the offshore world. As one of the first countries to legalize the use of digital signatures, Bermuda is now joined by more than 70 countries that have enacted similar legislation.

"Trusted online transactions are the key to successful E-business and QuoVadis is delivering trust by relying on Kyberpass to provide a vital component of its certificate authority," Robert Lendvai, Kyberpass vice president of marketing, said.
